Memorial Day for Hancock sel County Law Enforcement officers was a grim time as they revealed the beating death of a 5-1/2-month-old girl.

The girl, Draven L. Archer. described as "beautiful and very healthy," was apparently dead at the time American med- day. ical Response had taken her to the hospital Saturday night, Hancock Sheriff Ronald Peter: son said.

The news conference called by Sheriff Peterson involved Chief Deputy Nathan Hoda and Investigator Kenny Hurt.

The law officers were visibly shaken as they described the events of the Saturday evening murder.

The little girl's mother's boyfriend, John Henry Seeling IV, 30, formerly of Harahan, La., has been charged with capital murder in her death,

Peterson said. On Tuesday at an initial Dobson, Seeling was appointed also responded to the 911 call. Peterson said he felt the child was dead by the time she arrived at the hospital.

Seeling first told police that the girl was eating and started choking on food in her throat. He said he tried to dislodge it by hitting her on the back, Peterson said.

Memorial service set for Captain Max Berns

A memorial service will be conducted at 3 p.m. Tuesday, June 15 at All Saints Episcopal Church, Vancouver, Wash., for Max A. Berns, Jr., Captain, U.S. Navy (Retired) who died May 26, 1999, of cancer at age

A longtime resident of Waveland, Captain Berns was born Nov. 4, 1917 in Cleveland, Ohio. He was a 1939 graduate of the U.S. Naval Academy, Annapolis, Md. After three years at sea he attended flight school and became a naval aviator in 1943. He served in the Navy for 30 years, including duty during World War II in the Atlantic and the Pacific. He retired from the military in 1969, having commanded aircraft squadrons, a carrier air wing and two ships, including the carrier USS Randolph (CVS-15), recovery ship for the historic orbital flight of astronaut John Glenn. Captain Berns lived in Norfolk, Va. for the next five years then settled in Waveland until 1997. He moved to Vancouver, Wash. in 1997 to be near daughter Suzy and her husband John, both former Bay-Waveland residents, and their three children.

In 1942 he married the former Virginia Elizabeth Ratenburg of New Orleans, who predeceased him in 1995. Following many years of living at duty assignment locales throughout the U.S. and Europe as a military family, Max and Ginny Berns settled in Waveland in 1975.

Waveland had also been the longtime home of Ginny Berns' parents, the late Herbert and Jeanette Ratenburg.

Capt. Berns was an accomplished pianist and spoke several foreign languages. He was active in Christ Episcopal Church, the Rotary Club, Bay St. Louis Little Theater and the New Orleans Saints Quarterback Club. In the 1870's Berns was the Hancock County Chamber of Commerce executive director.

Survivors include three daughters, Judy Jean Berns of Los Angeles, Calif.; Susan Jane Dougher of Vancouver, Wash.; and Barbara Ann Dunbar of Houston, Texas; son Thomas H. Berns of Corte Madera, Calif. and six grandchildren, Jeff, Lauren and Allison Dougher, Jenny Berns and Parker and Elizabeth Dunbar.

Captain Berns will be buried at sea by the U.S. Navy with military honors.

The family suggests remembrances to Hospice Southwest, Vancouver, WA.

Hancock County supervisors on Monday will be asked to put a landfill that is proposed in the buffer zone on an upcoming ballot.

Hancock County's Solid Waste Authority met in recess meeting on Wednesday, and the Board of Supervisors meeting room at the historic county Courthouse was jammed, with some people standing against the back wall.

But, shortly into the meeting, it was apparent that the sixmember Authority would wait almost until the last possible moment before it would officially vote on whether to amend the county's 20-year Solid Waste plan and locate a landfill in the buffer zone surrounding the Stennis Space Center.

Authority Chairman Rocky Pullman said, however, at Monday's Board of Supervisors meeting, he would ask ask supervisors "to put it to a vote."

Pullman said he had put a lot of thought and time studying a developers proposal, and admitted that maybe, "I looked into the revenue too much. But, I will not support a landfill in the buffer zone that wants to take in too much out of state waste." He said the estimated 2100 tons per day that the developer wants to haul in was "too much."

Pullman's remarks came after Authority Attorney Lucien Gex said it was his opinion that the Authority should take some action on amending the Solid Waste plan at their Wednesday meeting, regardless of a recent opinion from the state Attorney General's office.

But, Authority members did not vote, and scheduled a recess meeting for 4 p.m. Monday. They also will ask state Department of Environmental Quality officials to attend that meeting.

The long-running dilemma over a landfill in the buffer zone has pitted Picayune politicians and neighbors against Hancock County officials. And Hancock supervisors, facing re-election in August primaries might also expect a backlash from some of its own citizens, who have signed a petition against the Even before any action was taken Wednesday, there has been months of posturing.

Most recently, the state Attorney General's Office reversed a previous decison last week, and now tells Hancock County supervisors they can put the landfill question to a public vote, possible as early as the Aug. 3 primaries. The decision came after state Sen. Scottie Cuevas, who opposes the landfill, wrote to the AG's office, and informed him that two citizens groups have obtained the signatures of more than 20 percent of registered Hancock County voters, who are against the landfill, and want the question on a ballot.

Hattiesburg developers chartered here as Mississippi Waste of Hancock County have offered to spend up to $45 million to permit, build and operate a combination rubbish site/ landfill on about one third of a 723-acre tract of rolling forest land off Texas Flat Road in the vast buffer zone surrounding the Stennis Space Center. The site is near the Pearl River-Hancock County boundary line, and it has met opposition from Pearl River and Hancock County citizens.

In return for gaining the rights to operate the landfill, developers Paige York Losse and her father, Dr. Bennett York, have offered Hancock County free dumping of its household garbage for at least 20 years, with a 10-year possible extension, and claim the landfill might generate up to $2 milion annually for the county. The Authority held a public hearing on the proposal on March 10, and legally had until June 8--90 days after the hearing--to make two decisions.

They needed to decide whether they will amend Hancock County's 20-year Solid Waste Plan to provide for a landfill in the buffer zone, and they must decide whether they want to go forward and sign a contract with the Yorks.

The six-member Authority and its attorney, and an environmental attorney it hired to assist in negotiations with the Yorks have been digesting the comments from the public hearing, and the sticking point seems to be how the Authority can legally restrict how much garbage can be dumped at the site and from what distance it can be hauled.

Opponents say limiting the collection radius to 150 miles, as proposed, would invite in New Orleans garbage, and lead to a megadump that would create traffic problems, devalue surrounding property and threaten the future growth of the Stennis Space Center.

U.S. Rep. Gene Taylor officially came out against the laundfill site during the March public hearing, claiming it would do irreparable harm to Stennis. And, Hancock County Board of Supervisors President Philip Moran, who initially suggested looking to the buffer zone for a landifli site, said at the public hearing he was listening to his constituents, and now feels that it should not be located there.

And, at last week's recess meeting of the Authority, Waste Management Inc., which now hauls Hancock County's household garbage, asked permission to divert all of part of the county's garbage from the Pecan Grove landfill in Harrison County to an expanded Central landfill in Pearl River County. The Authority's contract with Waste Management expires next February.

In this article, we'll look at intensive forestry as it is being practiced overseas, and its potential here in the southern United States.

Bear this in mind for comparison: an unmanaged natural forest will grow about one cord of wood per acre per year and a lightly managed southern pine plantation will produce about two cords of wood per acre per year. These countries built several world-class paper mills to meet this tremendous demand, and are increasingly relying on intensively farmed tropical hardwoods, such as

CUEVAS' QUOTES"

By Ellis C. Cuevas

On occasion I hear complaints about vandalism or theft in various cemeteries throughout our county.

The latest was from a Bay resident who called last week to report that flowers were removed twice from two grave sites.

The lady said she is to the point now that she does not want to place flowers on the graves of her loved ones, because she knows they will be stolen.

On Easter and Mother's Day she placed flowers on two graves in St. Mary Cemetery in Bay St. Louis and also two at the Waveland Cemetery only to return later and find them removed.

Whenever a person places flowers on a grave site, no matter the occasion, it is because relatives are remembering a loved one no longer with them.

I would like to suggest that if anyone views someone removing flowers or items from a gravesite unrelated to them, to please notify their respective police department.

We live in a terrible time when flowers are removed from the gravesite of loved ones.

I sure hope the culprits will have a change of heart and realize the hurt they cause by their actions.

I wonder, just where is patriotism going to go in this country?

Over the weekend I attended four Memorial Day activities sponsored by veterans organizations, and the crowds are getting smaller each year.

I can remember attending Memorial Day activities at the Bay St. Louis and Waveland American Legion Posts not too many years ago, and there was standing room only.

Every year the number of attendees is getting smaller and smaller.

True, many of our veterans have died, but we have more and more people in our communities.

I wonder if everyone really knows Memorial Day, what it stands for and the reasons we have to remember those who gave their lives for the freedoms of our

I do want to take this time to commend those who take the time to remember our deceased veterans and let them know there are still a few patriots left in America.

The hurricane season is here. Hopefully everyone will remember the importance of being prepared, just in

We were lucky during the 1998 hurricane season, as Georges could have done much, much more damage had it not entered land at the Alabama/Mississippi line.

If you have any doubts about the forces of a hurricane, visit the residents of the eastern coastal section of Mississippi, such as Pascagoula. Ask them about what they went through.

As the experts say, always be prepared.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Litter is typical of area; Echo needs to join modern era, N.O. visitor says

I am writing in response of the "Cuevas Quote" of Sunday, May 9, regarding an article in Mississippi Outdoors magazine. The fishermen in the picture told of their great catches of fish, and the photo was taken at Sand Beach in Clermont Harbor. Mr. Cuevas noted the amount of litter displayed in the picture. Why not? It's typical of the area.

As a kid I spent many summers in the Clermont Harbor area and I have for years entertained the idea of buying a house of my own there to relieve the memories with my own kids, as some of my friends have.

During my visits to the area I have always purchased a Sea Coast Echo so I could stay informed about the goings-on in the area. But I have now decided not to buy, and here's why, and I offer these observations only as an outside observer:

Clermont Harbor/Lakeshore/Bayou Caddy, as seen through the eyes of an adult, is the red-haired stepchild of the Mississippi Gulf Coast. It's not just the trash and filth piled up and scattered about with no regard (especially on the road behind Buccaneer Park) and the unsightly, crumbling seawall, but it's also the apparent mindset of some residents of the area.

Don't want that washer or TV anymore? Just dump it along a road in Clermont Harbor!

Also, a few years ago when beautiful wide beach was being pumped in from the Bay St. Louis bridge to Buccaneer Park, which enhanced the beauty and value of those areas, some dimwit halted the beach from the Buccaneer area to Bayou Caddy to protect supposedly rare seaweed.

Consequently, now that stretch has crumbling seawalls and no decent beach and is a true eyesore. The irony is that the "valuable seaweed" disappeared shortly afterward during a storm, but too late for the beach to be extended.

Now the possibility of casinos built along that stretch has surfaced and other environmentalist "Save-the-seaweek" types are trying to scuttle the project to save the wetlands. Excuse me, but why?

Isn't there enough wetland area still surrounding the proposed casino sites? And what swamp life are we protecting? The are fiddler crab? the beloved nutria?

Big-money development could make Clermont Harbor/Lakeshore/Bayou Caddy the Reno to the Las Vegas of the Gulfport/Biloxi area. Numerous jobs could help the poverty and destitution of the area, which leads to crimes of desperation against its citizens. But instead it appears destined to remain the armpit of the Mississippi Gulf Coast.

People, where in the world are your priorities?

Additionally, a friend of mine with a house in the Clermont Harbor area recalls that a few years ago the lawmakers changed everybody's street address in that area to be more identifiable (?) in an emergency, yet the phone book still carries the no-longerexisting house number they had 10 years ago.

God forbid if someone does have an emergency and the house number is wrong after making residents change their number to ensure efficiency in expediting aid to them.

Why did they change all the addresses if they are not listed correctly in the phone book?

And, by the way, I do enjoy reading the Echo to relive my summers as a youth . . . it's still the great Coast newspaper it has always been.

But, as a suggestion, instead of printing those endless court proceedings to fill space with judgments for longpast crimes (which are so lengthy I doubt if anybody reads them anyway), wouldn't it be more timely and beneficial to run up-to-date police reports to notify the citizens of the crimes taking place during the past few days in their neighborhoods?

No area is perfect, but Clermont/Lakeshore/Bayou Caddy seems to be a circus. Now I expect that someone will write a reply and tell this "city slicker" and others like him to stay out and keep the money they would invest in the area. Save your stamp. From what I've seen, that's fine with me, and I will stay out. But who really loses?

Anthony Corelli New Orleans

P.S. Is the Echo every going to join the modern era and get an e-mail address for correspondence? You know, AOL only charges $21.95 a month and it would really bring you guys into the modern era instead of those "old times" that Ellis Cuevas is so fond of recalling (second only to cars with one headlight)!

Tree roots can be damaged by construction

I'd like to express my appreciation to the city and their drainage construction contractor. I am very grateful to them for moving the backfill from the drainage construction project off my plants and my plants' roots. Thank you for being sensitive to the special needs of "urban" plants and trees.

The drainage construction project is now at my house. Your May 27 issue featured a photograph of the contractor working his backhoe in "my"corner.

When the contractors arrived across the street, my husband went to them and asked them to please not put their back-fill of to pile anything heavy on our property. At this point, it was too late to do any root pruning of my hedge, my shade trees or my fruit trees in anticipation of the backhoe. Keeping heavy material off the remaining roots after they had been torn was the best we could do. It is true that disturbing the roots can kill a plant. The roots-line extends out from the trunk approximately one-anda-half times the height of the plant. It extends further than the drip line.

I was surprised that one of the contractor's crew did not think that the two-foot around section of root lying by his foot had come from the tree under

which he was standing. Digging or grading around the root-zone injures the roots and can kill a plant.

Stacking construction materials, back-fill or putting anything heavy on the roots within the root-zone will also injure the roots and can also kill the plant. It may take two or more years, as some plants have more resources to use up in their decline, but death often starts with of the roots.

When my husband asked the contractors to not place their back-fill or pile anything heavy on our property, he was told not to worry about it. We went on to work and did not "baby-sit" the project.

There was about 15 feet of back-fill piled up against our hedge and our trees Wednesday morning. That day I let the contractor and the city know that I am holding them responsible for the health of our hedge and of our trees.

The contractor moved the bulk of the back-fill off my hedge, and I remain very grateful to him for doing so. We do need drainage improvement. I am grateful that the city and the contractor are also sensitive to the needs of our "urban forest."

Seminar targets gangs, cults, school violence

Gangs, cults and school violence will be the focus of a June 10 seminar at the University of Southern Mississippi.

Gangs, Cults and Violence in the School Setting" is designed for parents, teachers, school administrators, guidance counselors, law enforcement personnel, social workers, youth court officers and others.

Speakers led by nationally recognized Southern Miss school violence expert Dr. Johnny Purvis will focus on gang and cult activity in Mississippi, weapons used by gangs, Satanism, witchcraft and voodoo; and techniques and strategies for prevention, intervention and suppression.

The seminar is part of a week-long course for educators but may be attended separate-

The seminar cost is $50 and includes lectures and handouts. Lunch and registration for the week-long three-credithour course -- Student Discipline Techniques and Procedures for Teachers and Administrators on June 8-25 -is additional.

Formal classroom sessions for that course are 8 a.m.-noon

Remembering those who 'Gave Their All' for America

Editor's note: This is the address given at the Bourgeois-Ray-Stieffel American Legion Post 77, Waveland on Memorial Day, May 31, 1999.

By Lt. Col. Russell L. Voorhies,

U.S. Air Force (Ret.) They said goodbye to their mothers and fathers, sisters and brothers, and went off to war.

They hugged their children tight, and kissed their spouses or sweethearts one last time with a sense of the great longing that was to come.

They left the towns and cities and farms where they had been born and raised.

They left schools and jobs. hopes and dreams, careers and callings . . .

And they went off to war.

They said they'd return. . . And everyone hoped and worked and prayed for that day. . .

But they never came home again.

The remains of many were returned to rest beneath the green grass of a thousand cemeteries in a thousand cities and towns across this great land.

Some were buried where they fell, far from home. Thousands more fill the sprawling military cemeteries overseas. And the great oceans have swallowed the crews of a vast armada.

The fate of untold numbers is known but to God.

Today, we honor the memory of those men and women who went off to war, never to return.

We owe them more than one can express in words.

We owe them more than these brief moments when we gather together each year to reflect on the sacrifices they made for the United States of America.

The fact, is our nation owes its very existence to those who answered the call of duty.

Thomas Jefferson said: "The ground of liberty must be gained by inches."

Yes, by inches, and by the lives of those who fought for liberty's hallowed ground.

More than 6,000 patriots died in battle during the

Who will honor their sacrifice, if not those of us who are blessed to call America our home?

American Revolution.

The Civil War, which tore this nation apart, has since bound us together with the strength of a common history that we might not otherwise have had. We lost 500,000 --North and South -- in that war.

In World War I, 116,000 lost their lives in service to America. Who will cherish their memory and mourn their loss if not all Americans who love this country? World War II saw 400,000

U.S. servicemen and women lose their lives. Then came Korea, Vietnam, and more recently, Desert Storm. And let us not forget those who have died in our latest peace-keeping missions. In all, more than one-million Americans have died in war since our country was founded. Who will remember those who gave their last full measure of devotion to the cause of justice, freedom and democracy if not those who live under the protections of these great principles? All Americans -- "We The People" -- must remember what they fought for.

We the people . . . must cherish their memory.

We the people . . . must honor their sacrifice.

Memorial Day ceremonies are not the only way to honor our fallen heroes.

Whenever we show respect for the American Flag, we honor our war dead.

Whenever we vote, we confirm the democracy they died

Whenever we exercise our freedoms of speech and to peaceably assemble, we honor their sacrifice.

Whenever we gather in places of worship, we are blessed by this greatest of freedoms which they fought to pro-

To the young people here today, who have no first-hand knowledge of war, I pray that it will always be so.

And I want you to know that those we honor today did not die because they loved war. They did not.

As General Douglas Mac-Arthur said: "The soldier above all other people prays for peace, for he must suffer and bear the deepest wounds and scars of war.'

But there have been times in our country's history when Americans have had to take a stand. A stand for right over wrong . . .

For good over evil.

Throughout our history, Americans have against the mighty forces of power-hungry tyrants bent on world combination. . .

Against those who cared nothing for freedom. . . Against those who cared nothing for human life. Had we not resisted, our country -- and the nations of other freedom-loving peoples -- would have been destroyed. Americans who answered their country's call are the reason that you and I are free to gather here today.

Thus, America's war veterans and our fallen comrades bequeath this heritage to our children and future generations: A free and just country unlike any other in world his-

Let us thank God for America. Let us thank God for those patriots who went off to war. And let us never forget those who did not return.

That flag, which once draped the coffin of a service man or woman, holds tears and a lifetime of memories. It offered pride to accompany the pain and sorrow of those whom the fallen had left behind.

It is altogether fitting that we celebrate on Memorial Day the freedom that has been won and sustained by these fallen heroes. Yes, I said heroes. All who died wearing a uniform of the U.S. Armed Forces are undeniably heroes.

No, you won't find in history books the names of most of those who rest beneath the white markers at national cemeteries or in carefully tended family plots in thousands of towns across America. But they are heroes nonethe-

Those who answered their country's call and put themselves in harm's way, who put the welfare of their comrades ahead of their own safety, who placed duty ahead of personal interests, they, indeed, are heroes. We honor them today and vow that their sacrifice will not be forgotten.

We also must not forget those whose fate remains unknown to us. I speak of the POW/MIAs. They battled for justice, and yet, justice has been denied them.

They fought for peace, but there is no peace for their loved ones. We must continue to insist on a full accounting of all POW/MIAs.

Coast sailors first raced for the Chapman Trophy in the summer of 1950 when Harry Truman was president, the minimum wage was 75 cents, and the Xerox machine was a brand new invention.

Two brothers had special incentive to capture the Chapman Trophy that year for their respective yacht clubs. Henry B. Chapman of Bay St. Louis and his brother Wallace of Biloxi had just donated the trophy to the Mississippi Coast Yachting Association in memory of their father, William J. Chapman, and brothers, Will W. and Alfred W., described as ardent sailing and yachting enthusiasts in the late 19th through early 20th centuries.

Despite Henry Chapman's best offorts, brother Wallace won the final race, taking home the trophy to Biloxi Yacht Club. Bay St. Louis residents Ann Chapman (Mrs. Ray H. Stieffel, Jr.) and brother Harrry Chapman crewed for Henry and still recall the disappointment of losing the first Chapman Regatta to their Biloxi uncle and

This summer, Coast sailors will again vie for the Chapman Trophy in the 50th annual Chapman Regatta, the oldest consecutively sailed inter-club team race in the United States.

The wooden Fish Class boats that were raced in 1950, some manufactured locally by C. C. and John McDonald, are long gone - replaced by sleeker, faster fiberglass Flying Scots. Sunshine's is now Trapani's Eater, the Star Theater is Big E, and Loiacano's is where you work off calories instead of buying them.

But some things never change. Descendants of William J. Chapman will participate in the Chapman Regatta this year just as they have every year since its inauguration. Harry Chapman has participated in every sailing of the regatta to date.

Ann Chapman Stieffel has taken part many times. All of their children have participated, as have numberous cousins. One banner year, 22 descendants of William J. Chapman sailed. Ardent sailing enthusiasm is clearly a Chapman family trait that surfaced by the end of the 19th century, and shows no signs of fading as the family heads into the 21st.

Lady Eagles eliminated by DePaul

In the end, junior first team All-American Courtney Blades (43-6) couldn't do it all for the No. 8 ranked Southern Miss Lady Eagles as they made their first appearance in Oklahoma City at the Women's College World Series in their first year of softball since 1992.

Blade turned in another outstanding performance Saturday afternoon, but couldn't get any run support as the Lady Eagles were eliminated from the WCWS by DePaul, 1-0 Saturday afternoon at Don E. Porter ASA Hall of Fame Stadium.

Blades finished the game tossing a two-hitter and striking out five. The damage was done in the bottom of the second inning then third baseman Julie Luna opened the frame hitting an 0-1 Blades pitch over the leftfield fence, just out of the reach of junior leftfielder Jennifer Collins.

Blades finished the WCWS allowing just eight hits in 12 innings and two runs, while striking out 10. She also had two of Southern Miss" seven hits.

DePaul Starter Nicole Terpstra (27-3) kept the Lady Eagle hitters off balance through three innings before freshman designated player Erin Johnson led the top of the fourth off with a double.

"I am so proud of this team and what they accomplished this season," said Souther Miss Head Coach Lu Harris. "They did more than anyone would ever have imagined.

Schwegmann closing in Waveland Mall

BY ED LEPOMA

It's business as usual at Schwegmann's Giant Supermarket in Waveland, although the shelves are getting bare.

Outside, yellow signs announce that the store in the Our Shopping Center off U.S. Hwy. 90 and Waveland Avenue, will be closing soon. Inside, the store is selling various items for prices ranging from 10 percent to 50 percent off.

The bankrupt New Orleansbased grocery chain is closing 11 of its stores, and the Schwegmann's here is the only one operating in Mississippi.

Local manager Louis Caballero said executives in New Orleans hadn't given him a date when the store would close for good, but said about 20 people are now employed there. He referred callers to the New Orleans office, but no one returned several calls by the Echo.

Waveland Mayor Tommy Longo was among those saddened to see the store closing, but said it had been rumored about 18 months ago.

Schwegmann Giant Super Markets Acquisition Co. LLC is the owner of the Schwegmann chain, and has sought to sell it. The firm bought the groceries in February of 1997, then filed for protection from creditors in a Chapter 11 bankruptcy last March.

So far, six of the Schwegmann stores in New Orleans have been sold to Sav-A-Center, and other grocers have made purchase offers on seven others.

One speaker said it appears the city pried up "a can of worms" by even addressing minor changes to the ordinance.

Other merchants, he said, wait until his office closes on Friday afternoon, erect banners illegally over the weekend, and remove them on Monday morning.

Carrigee said that under orders from the mayor he hasn't been issuing any more citations until the council takes action.

Council members stressed that the ordinance's main purpose is to control the appearance of Bay St. Louis, and keep it from being overwhelmed by unsightly and potentially dangerous temporary Still, as the five-year-old ordinance has come under renewed scrutiny, even public officials are > pointing to things in the document that appear out of order. For instance, most old town merchants can't erect any banners because the law says the signs must be 20 feet from the street. That's physically impossible in the older commercial section of town. Council members agreed that regulation doesn't seem fair, but they struggled to come up with an alternative regulation that would keep downtown banners from becoming a traffic safety hazard. Then there were other questions that are not easily resolved: What's the difference in an awing and a canvas banner? Do car lot plastic streamers have to be permitted as banners? Why can the library put up a banner on its building without a permit, if merchants have to go through the permit process? Are flags banners if they have advertising words of them? Does an illegal banner become a legal sign if it's permanently affixed to a building?

cautioned council Carrigee members at one point that adding and relatives in Leetown too many details to the sign would render ordinance unenforceable.

Council took no action on the matter Tuesday, other than conducting the public hearing.

An earlier planned workshop on the city's comprehensive plan didn't materialize because a quorum of council didn't appear in time for the session.

Blood drive set June 6 in Bay

The Bay St. Louis community is hosting an American Red Cross blood drive Wednesday, June 9 at the American Legion Post 139, Green Meadow Road in Bay St. Louis, 2-5 p...

The public is encouraged to come out and donate. Blood drives throughout the Gulf Coast region this spring have taken on added importance as area hospitals continue to increase the amount of blood they need to serve their patients.

In March, the American Red Cross distributed over 2,000 more pints of blood than anticipated to Gulf Coast hospitals. That represents an increase of more than 25 percent over March 1998, continuing the trend of increased usage.

Eligible donors must be at least 17 years old, weigh at least 110 pounds and should not have donated in the past 56 days.

The American Red Cross Blood Services, Gulf Coast Region, provides blood and blood products to 69 hospitals in 46 counties in central and south Alabama, south Mississippi and northwest Florida.

Horne appointed to bank board

Hancock Bank President George A. Schloegel announced that Jackson County Advisory Board Director James H. "Jim" Horne is a newly appointed member of the Hancock Bank Advisory Board of Directors.

Horne has served as a Jackson county regional advisory director since March 1995.

"We at Hancock Bank are delighted to have Jim Horne serving on our board. His experience in representing our Jackson County constituencies will continue to prove beneficial to the entire Hancock Bank organization as we move toward our second century of service to our Gulf Coast communities," said Schloegel.

A native of Inverness, Horne has resided in Pascagoula for over 30 years. Horne attended the University of Mississippi on a football scholarship. He received a bachelor of business degree from Ole Miss in 1974.

Horne, a commercial and industrial real estate appraiser in Jackson, Harrison and Hancock counties for over 20 years, obtained Member of Appraisal Institute (MAI) designation in 1985 as an expert in the commercial appraisal field.

Horne's civic and professional achievements include involvement in Ocean Springs and Pascagoula land development projects, past membership in the vestry of St. John's Episcopal Church in Pasca-

The past three years were among the best on record for many stocks and stock mutual funds. That's good news for investors.

The bad news is that some individuals are now making long-term investment decisions based only on what happened in the very recent past. Those returns were the exception, not the rule. Looking only at short-term performance puts your long-term financial security at risk.

If you need sound advice on investments that will stand the test of time, give me a call.

NASA's 'Our Newest star' to kick off library's 1999 Summer Reading Program

'Our Newest Star,' a program by NASA on the International Space Station, will kick off the first program of the Hancock County Library System's 1999 Summer Reading Program.

'Mississippi Magic' is the theme this year, which is open to children and young adults, pre-school through eighth grade. Programs and activities begin Tuesday, June 1.

Programs will be held Tuesday at 10:30 a.m. at the Waveland Library; Wednesday at 10:30 a.m. at the Bay St. Louis Library; Thursdays at 10:30 a.m. at the Kiln Library; and Fridays at 10 a.m. at the Pearlington Library.

Each registrant will receive a reading record, book bag and pencil with which to record books read, and those who complete the program will receive a certificate.

NASA's program will focus on the international space station, a permanent space research laboratory created by thousands of workers in the U.S., Russia and 14 other nations.

When fully completed around 2004, the station will span 80 meters and 109 meters wide. It will house as much work and living space as the passenger cabins of two Boeing 747 jets.

The station will also hold up to seven astronauts at a time, some living there for as long as 187 days. On board the station, they will perform a diverse array of experiments designed by
